

African Avatars and the Third Secret of Fatima

FEW WESTERNERS ARE AWARE OF THE spectacular religious activity that has been thundering with incalculable exuberance through the hearts of millions of Africans in our just-passed century. Men and women have been seeing vision after vision, sign after sign, and wonder after wonder. There are national holidays commemorating miracles -- not from centuries ago by some old saint whose paint has long since peeled, but within the last few decades and witnessed by thousands of ordinary citizens still walking among us.

Religious scholars whom I have contacted as independent sources have been recording the activity with intense fascination. Relatively little is known, and scholars are quite eager to learn more. They may be gathering information that could eventually form a "new" New Testament. It may well be that we are viewing the beginnings of a new civilization formed around a new Christ, which, like the occasion that started our present one 20 centuries ago, remains relatively unknown in the world until some time after the events that then inspire so many millions for centuries to come.

This book extract featured here is primarily about a man named Simeon Toko, who died in 1984. Simeon Toko appeared before people in an apparitional body and in dream states while he was physically alive, and continues to do the same among certain selected people 17 years after his willing, natural death. At least one witness says that he, personally, killed this man - quite professionally, as a hired killer -- and saw him alive again a few days later. Others still living at the time of this writing say they saw Toko physically slaughtered, and watched him bring himself back to life before their astonished eyes. There is a very large body of testimony, of which only a little has yet been recorded or written down from eyewitnesses.

Much of the media news from Africa in the past 80 years has been presented as political rebellion and tribal warmongering or as a battle between "good" civilized countries versus "evil" communists over the souls of Africans who are still considered uncivilized, superstitious and too immature, individual

Ladies and Gentlemen:

My name is Sherry Peel Jackson. I became a Certified Public Accountant in 1987, I was an Internal Revenue Agent in the Atlanta District for 7 years, and I became a Certified Fraud Examiner in 2001. I am here to summarize the tales of ignorance and deception that you have heard over the last two days and I am here to inform you of the state of the nation so that you may choose your next course of action.

You have heard the truth of how the Internal Revenue Service, Department of Justice, Federal Reserve and politicians have perpetuated this smoke

You have heard of American families devastated by the invasion of privacy and unbridled fear placed upon them through threats of liens, levy's and even jail time. In my tenure as an IRS agent, I personally saw marriages broken, families torn apart, homes confiscated and businesses destroyed - all while my colleagues and I were out

You have seen that Commissioner Rosotti, Dan Bryant the majority of our congressional delegation and other civil servants have refused to do their jobs. It would have been as simple as answering the questions of these well-educated researchers in a public forum, such as this one. But they have reneged, so you be the judge. We're making that move...

AFTER TWO YEARS OF PLANNING AND many hours of meditating and researching, we are, with this issue, launching SiriusTimes as a quarterly publication. We seek the support of our many friends throughout our network in this venture because it will be sorely needed.

We have sub-titled the publication, "Journal for Evolving Consciousness". What does this mean? For us, it defines our focus and our mission. If we define "consciousness" as, "that which we are" in reality; the totality of our being at all levels; body, mind, and spirit. Then it is within the Creator's consciousness matrix that we exist; that we live and move and have our being.

An extremely simplified and condensed summary of the evolution of consciousness goes as follows: Over millennia, our consciousness' became separated and unbalanced, through focus on the physical and "involution" deeper and deeper into matter. After going "as low as they could go" into physicality, our consciousness' began their journey of "evolution"; the journey out of matter back to spirit.

Today, consciousness is evolving at an ever increasing rate. This is evidenced by the perception of many that "time itself" has speeded up.

We live in very interesting and volatile times. We are bombarded daily by the major media, who seem more focused on shaping public opinion rather than informing or accurately measuring it. They are part of the problem.

So much is suppressed. So much goes unreported or under reported or spin-reported, that the average person can't help but be confused and fearful. Instinctively, we know that something is not right. We also know that we are not being told the whole story. We know we are also being outright lied to by people in power. So, where do we turn? We turn to each other.

Each of us must take the responsibility for learning the truth and then standing up for that truth, and what we believe and pass it on to someone else. Each one reach one, each one teach one. We have a responsibility to each other to communicate our truth, whatever it may be. Our truth is our reality.

For this reason, we chose the mix of articles in this issue. If you are asleep, we want to wake you up.

We seek to do our part by providing this publication as an information service and an open forum for the consciousness community. We invite you to send us articles, news, or other information you feel would be of interest to our readers.

We also seek businesses, artists, community and other organizations to advertise in SiriusTimes. Each issue of the publication will be distributed to a minimum of 1,500 existing subscribers and new subscribers as we grow. We express an interest in African spirituality, world spirituality, metaphysics, alternative sciences, ancient civilizations and cultures, astrology and numerology and other related subjects.

Classified ads, listing information and rates can be found in the sidebar to the left. To order display advertising and get information on rates, call Delbra at 404-344-6862.

Please take advantage of the free subscription offer if you are not already on our mailing list. You can also send a free subscription to a friend or relative that might be interested.

In any event, I hope you enjoy SiriusTimes and find it informative and helpful to you in your evolutionary journey.

ST NEWS & VIEWS

Bank of America Can Now Give Your Money Away

Bank of America was reported to have changed its depositors agreement because of a lawsuit filed by Irwin Schiff, an author of numerous books exposing the federal governments illegal enforcement of the income tax.

The bank's new agreement reads that if the Bank mistakenly gives your money to someone, you won't hold the bank liable.

"Unlike most other banks," Schiff said, "the Bank of America's 'Depositor's Agreement' allows it to turn over your money to 'another person or entity (who) makes a claim against the funds in your account.'" even without a court order.

"Despite the provisions in its Agreement, I was able to claim an abuse of desecration and breach of contract. The Bank had no legal obligation to honor a Notice of Levy sent to it by IRS Revenue Officer James F. Gritis."

"A month after I filed my lawsuit," Schiff continued, "the bank substantially rewrote its agreement which now includes an outrageous provision that depositors won't hold the bank liable even if it wrongfully turns over their money to someone else."

"How many people with money in that Bank know that they have agreed to such a ridiculous proposition?" questioned Schiff. "And the Bank even added a provision that by leaving your money in that bank you have agreed to these new provisions even if you are unaware of them."

Schiff said that, although he doesn't think they will hold up, the Bank's new agreement also contains provisions that if you do sue the bank, you waive your right to a jury trial and also agree not to join any class action or other lawsuit against the bank.

African AIDS Diagnosis Questioned

The AIDS crisis in Africa may be misunderstood, because an AIDS diagnosis is seldom verified with actual tests. The conditions accepted as forming the problem of AIDS in the West bear little or no resemblance to that which is called AIDS in Africa.

Recent findings say that approximately 99.2% of Africans don't have classic AIDS symptoms, including 97% of those presumed to be HIV-positive.

Contrary to the Western practice of confirming an AIDS diagnosis with two or more laboratory tests, in Africa AIDS is diagnosed in most instances without laboratory tests.

Based on the World Health Organization definition for African AIDS cases, many Africans are pronounced as AIDS victims if they show the following signs and symptoms: prolonged fever or a persistent cough for more than one month; 10% weight loss in two months; and chronic diarrhea. These problems are not necessarily rare in many African countries.

Most African people die from symptoms that arise from known and treatable infectious diseases like malaria, pneumonia or diarrhea as a result of poor hygiene and malnutrition.

Societal illnesses are thus being listed as AIDS -- a disease for which the victim is more likely to be blamed -- instead of being faced as products of the socio-economic realities of the region.

Income Tax Petitions Delivered to Congress

Auburn, N.H. -- Hundreds of petitions exposing the unconstitutionality of the Federal Income Tax have been delivered by e-mail and by regular mail to all of the members of Congress, the President and Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the House, the Senate Majority Leader, the Senate Finance Committee, Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

The petitions allege that Congress has fraudulently and unconstitutionally expanded the Federal Income Tax beyond what was authorized by the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the signers demand that the United States immediately cease attempting to assess and collect Federal Income Taxes which have not been imposed in accordance with the original intent of that amendment.

There is a tremendous amount of evidence from the Congressional Record and other places that the original intent of the Sixteenth Amendment was only to authorize Congress to impose a Federal Income Tax upon the earnings of wealthy individuals and businesses in this country and that over time Congress has fraudulently expanded the Federal Income Tax so that now it is imposed upon virtually every American and business who earns any amount above a relatively low threshold.

The signers of the petitions believe that since the original intent of the Sixteenth Amendment was only to authorize Congress to impose a Federal Income Tax upon the earnings of the wealthy, and that since the Sixteenth Amendment has never been changed or modified since it was ratified in 1913, then the earnings of the wealthy should still be the only items subject to the Federal Income Tax today.

The claim is that Simon Kimbangu healed the sick, made the lame walk, returned sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf, and even brought back to life an infant who had been dead for three days.

by individual, to be left to themselves... what with all those raw materials and diamonds yet needing to be dug up. This is the general bias of news reporting from Africa as I remember it since my own childhood. It's not much different now. We tend to think of the African peoples with a distortion somewhere between a bouquet of jokes about banana republics and a vague, distant horror of unexplainable war and slaughter.

The first slave traders who came to Africa in the 15th century CE found an advanced society dominated by a monotheism with a powerful code of ethics. They did not find half-naked people in grass skirts with bones through their noses. They found an intelligent, friendly, dignified people who had created beautiful avenues, pleasant buildings, well-regulated agricultural fields and fine clothing. They found a people who practiced the old Mosaic code, essentially (students of Mosaic law will note how much of it resembles the Egyptian code). They found a people whose language (KiKongo), linguists have shown, contains scores of words found in biblical Hebrew and in later European languages and thus pre-dates these. They may well have found what happened to be the so called lost tribes of the kingdom of Israel.

Except that the subsequent four centuries have proved out the following statement to a deplorable degree, we could otherwise be incredulous at a surmised of the main difference between the "discoverers" of central Africa and the people they divided and traded like objects and cattle over the ensuing generations: the difference between the civilized dark skinned peoples and their conquerors is measurable in intensity of greed and the will to murder to fulfill greed's endlessly wearisome demands. This behavior has not ended in modern times. Slavery still exists in Africa, for instance.

Now, centuries after the first slashes onto the belly of the African land and peoples, predominantly white-skinned countries still allowed predominantly white-skinned corporations to assist insane warlords in killing each other, helping with helicopters and technology simply to keep company profits going. So reported Global Pacific News not long ago.

There is no question that the peoples of Africa, millions and millions of descendants of the ancient Ethiopians and Egyptians among them, have been methodically dehumanized for centuries. No peoples have met with such enormous psychological and material destruction in recorded human history. If they can be said to be blamed for allowing any of it, then their fault could only lie in a willingness to trust fellow men who come preaching principles.

The damage that Christian missionaries have done to the psychology of human kindness in Africa over the centuries is untold. Missionaries routinely accompanied soldiers who came to steal lands and loot for their home European country. The procedure went as follows: the missionary would stand and read aloud an edict in Latin to whatever villagers gathered. The edict, completely incomprehensible to the villagers, ordered that each of them must at that moment convert to Christianity or be killed or enslaved. After it was read, the guns and swords were put to work. The soldiers felt justified in their murders through the benediction and authority of the Roman Church. Through varying interpretations of the works of Church fathers, the Roman Church developed a system of permissible murder and looting, and it was used routinely.

The missionaries would then go to work on the remaining people. The children were taught that their parents' intelligent, peaceful beliefs were "from the devil" and that they were to accept poverty "for the good of their souls," whereas the conquerors were supposedly blessed by God with superior might and wealth and so had to be obeyed.

Not long ago, Pope John-Paul II issued a public statement apologizing for the behavior of the Roman Church during the Inquisition centuries ago. Over a period of about 400 years, Church authorities humiliated, ostracized, tortured and murdered about a half a million fellow Europeans over "matters of faith". As these atrocities in the name of God mostly occurred centuries ago, the apology seemed a little late in coming. However, no apology seems to have been offered yet to the estimated 100 million Africans who were categorically enslaved, tortured and murdered into submission in the 400 years that the Roman Church itself assisted this activity, quite officially, benefiting from it materially and politically.

Simon Kimbangu: A Persecuted Prophet

One would wonder also why there is as yet no apology forthcoming from the Vatican for its role in intent to murder one Simon Kimbangu. This did not happen so long ago that the descendants have long been unaware of the wrong done and the property confiscated, as is mostly the case with the Inquisition.

There are thousands of Africans alive at the time of this writing who remember Simon Kimbangu very well. Kimbangu's name is celebrated throughout the great expanses of central Africa, and his fame continues to increase. He stands as far more than a mere national hero. A short history of his life can be found in the Encyclopedia Britannica. He and his followers are also the subject of more detailed scholarly research. Simon Kimbangu was a prophet. He was tortured and left to rot in prison, where he died in October 1951 after 30 years.

There are Africans alive at this writing who were brought back from the dead by Simon Kimbangu, and there are people still living that watched him do it. The claim is that Simon Kimbangu healed the sick, made the lame walk, returned sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf, and even brought back to life an infant who had been dead for three days. Kimbangu performed these miraculous deeds over a period of five months, from May 1921 through 12 September 1921. Scholars do not dispute that this man performed these miracles. There is simply too much testimony about it.

On 10 September 1921, Simon Kimbangu gave a speech. He announced that the colonial authorities were about to arrest him and "impose a long period of silence on my body". He announced that one day a "Great King" of tremendous spiritual, scientific and political power would arise, and that he himself would return as a representative. Before this event, a certain book would be written that would prepare the people of Kongo (not "Congo") for this event. This book would be resisted, but slowly it would come to be accepted.

Two days later, Simon Kimbangu was arrested by colonial authorities -- on his 42nd birthday, 12 September 1921 -- and curtly sentenced him to death. The authorities for the Roman Church had recommended his execution, and so had various other Christian missions.

According to noted scholar Dr. Allan Anderson, the Baptist mission alone protested the execution of this man whose apparent crime was to have stood in a village daily for five months and healed, consoled and revitalized people. The joy and the amazement of the gathering crowds had left the prophet open to supposed charges of sedition by jealous missionaries. Punishment for alleged sedition was death.

Just as Kimbangu had predicted two days before his arrest, he was instead given an indefinite prison term, a "long silence of his body". Each morning he was taken from his tiny cell and put bodily into a tank of cold salt water for lengthy periods in an attempt to hasten his death. His prediction that his body would be tortured and humiliated came true.

He also predicted that day that Africa would be "thrown into a terrible period of unspeakable persecutions". For the next 40 years, Africans were indeed put through a terrible period of unspeakable religious persecutions. Hundreds of thousands were imprisoned, deported, separated from their families, subject to atrocious tortures and simply persecuted for new religious beliefs. These new religious beliefs, triggered by the few words of an African man who performed miracles among his own people for "only a little while", sent out great psychological rays of hope to a continent of peoples who had long become accustomed to misery and poverty under centuries of oppressive religious instruction. These powerful beliefs are still in development and will reach around the world even in their beginning stages. The appearance of the book this essay review marks one of many such beginnings.

The Fatima Prophecies and Religious Codes

The title of the book this essay introduces is The True Third Secret of Fatima Revealed and the Return of Christ. The author is Pastor Melo Nzeyitu Josias, and additional research was done by Rocha Nefwani. Both men are native Africans, both highly educated. I edited the book myself, here in America, and added a little general historical knowledge.

The book was meant to be available on 13 May, to commemorate the first of six visits of the Lady of Fatima, Portugal, who appeared on that date in 1917. She was visible to the three shepherd children who repeated her words to the world, yet was invisible to the crowds of thousands who were drawn to come to see her. The Lady made astonishing predictions. Her two sets of predictions, made in 1917 about events of the coming decades, proved true. Among other things, she prophesied the fall of Russia to communism, the end of the First World War and the coming of the Second World War.

There was a Third Secret, however, which the Lady instructed Lucia dos Santos to reveal only after 1960, after certain events had passed which would have made it more understandable. It was read to Pope John XXIII in February 1960. When the Pope heard it, he fainted to the floor; when he arose, he ordered the Third Secret sealed up in a vault "forever".

Are we in the "end of times"? Are we at the hour in which the Christ has already returned and gone? It would seem that appearances of men acclaimed to be God incarnate have increased greatly in the past century.

Whether a human being can be said to be God made flesh, let alone whether a particular individual can be said to be this, can be debated into meaninglessness.

Those few who are said to have become "god-realized" and who have made themselves known to the public for divine purposes and missions, seem to attract material fortunes from a public that is either inexpressibly grateful or is too gullible. Although some Hindu religious branches speak of "five Ascended Masters" who live invisibly on our planet, there are many quite visible gurus or proclaimed avatars, around whom devotees have formed practical organizations of high material worth. Monies are collected and practical advantages, such as political contributions, keep the organizations going, while their intent is to "enlighten" the masses -- who, we must assume, are "endarkened" without them.

Sincere or fraudulent, authentic or imitation, each event of the appearance of a man (usually a male) said to be God or god-realized represents a new bud of one size or another upon a very ancient vine. The vine would be human consciousness, and the bud would be civilization.

A civilization forms through codes of knowledge and behavior that allow each of its members, relatively, the broadest opportunity for value fulfillment. The codes seem most often to have originated with a single man who is also revealed as God's prophet, if not God Himself in fleshly clothing. New knowledge, or interpretations of it, is added in that Man-God's name.

Christianity, of all religions, has come closest to uniting the peoples of the entire world. The emergence of avatars in Africa in the 20th century maintains a continuity with the ancient prophecies found in the Bible. The True Third Secret cites biblical passages that make a case that Simeon Toko was Christ Returned -- at least, different Christian ministers who considered the interpretations did not scorn their logic.

Who Believes In Conspiracy Theories?

Most people do. According to polls, most Americans agree that the scenario posed by at least one conspiracy theory is very likely or somewhat likely. On June 25-29, 1997, a survey was conducted of 1,009 people nationwide, with participants from every state and the District of Columbia. Guido H. Stempel III, distinguished professor of the EW Scripps School of Journalism at Ohio University and Thomas Hargrove of the Scripps Howard News Service conducted the survey. The results have a 4% margin of error with a 95% confidence interval, meaning that the results are projectable to all American households 95 times out of 100 plus or minus 4 percentage points. At that time:

- More than half (51%) believe it is very likely or somewhat likely that government officials were “directly responsible for the assassination of President Kennedy.”
- More than half (60%) believe it is likely that military officials covered up the dangers of the Agent Orange chemical.
- Four-fifths (80%) believe it is likely that military officials are covering up information about American soldiers’ exposure to nerve gas or germ warfare in the Gulf War.
- More than one-third (40%) believe it is likely that the FBI burned down the Branch Davidian compound in Waco, Texas.
- More than half (52%) believe it is likely that the CIA allowed drug dealers from Central America to sell crack cocaine to African-Americans in US inner cities.
- More than one-third believe it is likely the Navy shot down TWA Flight 800 either intentionally or accidentally.
- Nearly half (47%) believe it is very likely or somewhat likely that “The U.S. Air Force is withholding proof of the existence of intelligent life from other planets.”

Respondents were asked if the above situations were likely to some degree. The above responses included the “very likely” and “somewhat likely” answers. Note that believing that something is “somewhat likely” may be the admission of possibility, not a firm belief.

Did the Government Manufacture AIDS and Make Drugs Available in Inner Cities to Attack Blacks?

A sizable number of people would agree with at least one of these accusations. In a 1990 poll, reported in the October 29, 1990 edition of The New York Times:

- Near one-third (29%) of black New Yorkers indicated belief that AIDS was “deliberately created in a laboratory in order to infect black people,” versus one in twenty (5%) among white New Yorkers.
- More than half (60%) of black New Yorkers indicated belief that government “deliberately” made drugs available to poor black people, versus a little more than one in ten (12%) among white New Yorkers.

In another 1990 survey, reported in the November 2, 1995 edition of the Boston Globe:

- More than one-third (34%) of black churchgoers polled in five cities agreed “the AIDS virus was produced in a germ warfare laboratory.”

the privately owned Federal Reserve to create paper currency and charge you 47 million dollars in interest per hour - money coming from the mouths of your children and the college education funds of your grandchildren, all the while the children and grandchildren of the owners of the Federal Reserve will never have to work a day in their lives, and that is wrong, on so many different levels.

And let me tell you, that as a black woman I am keenly aware of the history of slavery. But do you understand that we are all slaves to this system? Do you understand that the media and Hollywood play a part, keeping the American people so fixated on Alley McBeal, WWF Smackdown, Moesha and The Practice that we don't take time to read “The Creature From Jekyll Island,” study the Internal Revenue Code and learn the Constitution.

Now, let me spend just a minute to address my culture. Do you realize that the so-called black leaders make millions of dollars every year playing the “us against them” role - keeping blacks focused on the race card and away from the real issue - the theft of our future through taxation. These publicity mongers are well aware of the oppression brought on by income taxation, they love to march on Washington about racial profiling and civil rights, not to say that these are not real problems, but these leaders have been too afraid to approach the powers that be and have a million man, woman, boy, girl march about economic freedom from income taxation and restoration of constitutional rights.

Also there's been a lot of talk about reparations lately, but know this: If all Americans were able to keep the money withheld from their paychecks every year, that money would enable them to home school, start their own business and boost the economy, save for college and retirement, even buy that 40 acres and a mule. So, you be the judge.

You need to understand that with an Internal Revenue Code, Code of Federal Regulation, and other “official documents” spouting off several different definitions of United States, Internal Revenue Service, and other important terms, this deception that keeps people ignorant is not a coincidence. The writers of the Code used semantics and legalese to make us think that we are required to pay the income tax and file an income tax return. Former IRS Commissioner Shirley Peterson even stated that, and I quote, “Eight decades of amendments to (the) Code have produced a virtually impenetrable maze. The rules are unintelligible to most citizens. The rules are equally mysterious to many government employees who are charged with administering and enforcing the law.” End quote.

This fraud was strung together by people like the former president who said “it depends on what your definition of is is” and it depends on what your definition of sex is”. This incident showed us that definitions are very important to politicians and lawyers, and no word is meaningless. For example, it does depend on what the definition of “source” is.

The opposition, in an attempt to keep the sheeple in the flock, will scoff at us and encourage unaware Americans to ridicule those of us who have been informed, saying, “these people just don't want to pay their fair share.” We have already learned from a speech by Former Reserve Chairman Beardsley Rhuml that this country doesn't need income taxes for revenue. This money collected from our sweat and tears is used to perpetrate redistribution of wealth, among other things. But the powers that be keep beating the people over the head with this “fair share” garbage. Well, what is fair share? Haven't the families of the victims in New York

The Real Story of the Money-Control Over America

Part 1 - by Sheldon Emry

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article is the first of a two-part series on the story of money. It is very important in these times to have an understanding of something so vital and central to all our lives.

Although most of us think we know what money is, once you read this article you will understand just how much you didn't know. The author covers most of the important issues and explains the nature of the European debt-based monetary system in easy to understand terms.

The author's views are his own and in no way reflect the opinions of the publishers. However, the facts revealed are so important to understand, the article is presented unchanged.

Part II will complete the article in our summer issue. Any comments you have regarding this information can be sent to us and will be considered for publication.

"This is a staggering thought. We are completely dependent on the commercial Banks. Someone has to borrow every dollar we have in circulation, cash or credit. If the Banks create ample synthetic money we are prosperous; if not, we starve. We are absolutely without a permanent money system. When one gets a complete grasp of the picture, the tragic absurdity of our hopeless position is almost incredible, but there it is. It is the most important subject intelligent persons can investigate and reflect upon. It is so important that our present civilization may collapse unless it becomes widely understood and the defects remedied very soon".

—ROBERT HEMPHILL
(Credit Manager of Federal Reserve Bank, Atlanta, GA.):

Americans, living in what is called the richest nation on earth, seem always to be short of money.

Wives are working in unprecedented numbers, husbands hope for overtime hours to earn more, or take part-time jobs evenings and weekends, children look for odd jobs for spending money, the family debt climbs higher, and psychologists say one of the biggest causes of family quarrels and breakups is "arguments over money."

Much of this trouble can be traced to our present "debt-money" system.

Too few Americans realize why Christian Statesmen wrote into Article I of the U.S. Constitution:

Congress shall have the Power to Coin Money and Regulate the Value Thereof.

They did this, as we will show, in prayerful hope it would prevent "love of money" from destroying the Republic they had founded. We shall see how subversion of Article I has brought on us the "evil" of which God's Word had warned.

Money is Man's Only "Creation"

Economists use the term "create" when speaking of the process by which money comes into existence. Now, creation means making something that did not exist before.

Lumbermen make boards from trees, workers build houses from lumber, and factories manufacture automobiles from metal, glass and other materials.

But in all these they did not "create," they only changed existing materials into a more usable and, therefore, more valuable form.

This is not so with money. Here, and here alone, man actually "creates" something out of nothing. A piece of paper of little value is printed so that it is worth a piece of lumber.

With different figures it can buy the automobile or even the house. Its value has been "created" in the true meaning of the word.

Money "Creating" Profitable

As is seen by the above, money is very cheap to make, and whoever does the "creating" of money in a nation can make a tremendous profit! Builders work hard to make a profit of 5% above their cost to build a house.

Auto makers sell their cars for 1% to 2% above the cost of manufacture and it is considered good business. But money "manufacturers" have no limit on their profits, since a few cents will print a $1 bill or a $10,000 bill.

That profit is part of our story, but first let us consider another unique characteristic of the thing — money, the love of which is the "root of all evil."

Adequate Money Supply Needed

An adequate supply of money is indispensable to civilized society. We could forego many other things, but without money industry would grind to a halt, farms would become only self-sustaining units, surplus food would disappear, jobs requiring the work of more than one man or one family would remain undone, shipping and large movements of goods would cease, hungry people would plunder and kill to remain alive, and all government except family or tribe would cease to function.

An overstatement, you say? Not at all. Money is the blood of civilized society, the means of all commercial trade except simple barter. It is the measure and the instrument by which one product is sold and another purchased. Remove money or even reduce the supply below that which is necessary to carry on current levels of trade, and the results are catastrophic. For an example, we need only look at America's Depression of the early 1930's.

The Bankers Depression of the 1930's

In 1930 America did not lack industrial capacity, fertile farmland, skilled and willing workers or industrious farm families.

It had an extensive and highly efficient transportation system in railroads, road networks, and inland and ocean waterways. Communications between regions and localities were the best in the world, utilizing telephone, teletype, radio, and a well-operated government mail system.

No war had ravaged the cities or the countryside, no pestilence weakened the population, nor had famine stalked the land.

The United States of America in 1930 lacked only one thing: an adequate supply of money to carry on trade and commerce.

In the early 1930's, Bankers, the only source of new money and credit, deliberately refused loans to industries, stores and farms. Payments on existing loans were required however, and money rapidly disappeared from circulation.

Goods were available to be purchased, jobs waiting to be done, but the lack of money brought the nation to a standstill. By this simple ploy America was put in a "depression" and the greedy Bankers took possession of hundreds of thousands of farms, homes, and business properties.

The people were told, "times are hard," and "money is short." Not understanding the system, they were cruelly robbed of their earnings, their savings, and their property.

Money for Peace? No! Money for War? Yes!

World War II ended the "depression." The same Bankers who in the early 30's had no loans for peacetime houses, food and clothing, suddenly had unlimited billions to lend for Army barracks, K-rations and uniforms! A nation that in 1934 couldn't produce food for sale, suddenly could produce bombs to send free to Germany and Japan! (More on this riddle later.)

With the sudden increase in money, people were hired, farms sold their produce, factories went to two shifts, mines reopened, and “The Great Depression” was over! Some politicians were blamed for it and others took credit for ending it.

The truth is the lack of money (caused by the Bankers) brought on the depression, and adequate money ended it. The people were never told that simple truth and in this article we will endeavor to show how these same Bankers who control our money and credit have used their control to plunder America and place us in bondage.

Power to Coin and Regulate Money

When we can see the disastrous’ results of an artificially created shortage of money, we can better understand why our Founding Fathers, who understood both money and God’s Laws, insisted on placing the power to “create” money and the power to control it ONLY in the hands of the Federal Congress.

They believed that ALL citizens should share in the profits of its “creation” and therefore the national government must be the ONLY creator of money.

They further believed that ALL citizens, of whatever State or Territory, or station in life would benefit by an adequate and stable currency and therefore, the national government must also be, by law, the ONLY controller of the value of money.

Since the Federal Congress was the only legislative body subject to all the citizens at the ballot box, it was, to their minds, the only safe depository of so much profit and so much power. They wrote it out in the simple, but all-inclusive: “Congress shall have the Power to Coin Money and Regulate the Value Thereof.”

How the People Lost Control to the Federal Reserve

Instead of the Constitutional method of creating our money and putting it into circulation, we now have an entirely unconstitutional system. This has resulted in almost disastrous conditions, as we shall see.

Since our money was handled both legally and illegally before 1913, we shall consider only the years following 1913, since from that year on, ALL of our money has been created and issued by an illegal method that will eventually destroy the United States if it is not changed.

Prior to 1913, America was a prosperous, powerful, and growing nation, at peace with its neighbors and the envy of the world.

But — in December of 1913, Congress, with many members away for the Christmas holidays, passed what has since been known as the FEDERAL RESERVE ACT. (For the full story of how this infamous legislation was forced through our Congress, read Conquest or Consent, by W. B. Uennard).

Omitting the burdensome details, it simply authorized the establishment of a Federal Reserve Corporation, with a Board of Directors (The Federal Reserve Board) to run it, and the United States was divided into 12 Federal Reserve “Districts.”

This simple, but terrible, law completely removed from Congress the right to “create” money or to have any control over its “creation,” and gave that function to the Federal Reserve Corporation.

This was done with appropriate fanfare and propaganda that this would “remove money from politics” (they didn’t say “and therefore from the people’s control”) and prevent “Boom and Bust” from hurting our citizens.

The people were not told then, and most still do not know today, that the Federal Reserve Corporation is a private corporation controlled by bankers and therefore is operated for the financial gain of the bankers over the people rather than for the good of the people. The word “Federal” was used only to deceive the people.

More Disastrous Than Pearl Harbor

Since that “day of infamy,” more disastrous to us than Pearl Harbor, the small group of “privileged” people who lend us “our” money have accrued to themselves all of the profits of printing our money — and more! Since 1913 they have “created” tens of billions of dollars in money and credit, which, as their own personal property, they then lend to our government and our people at interest.

“The rich get richer and the poor get poorer” had become the secret policy of our National Government. An example of the process of “creation” and its conversion to people’s “debt” will aid our understanding.

They Print It —We Borrow It and Pay Them Interest

We shall start with the need for money. The Federal Government, having spent more than it has taken from its citizens in taxes, needs, for the sake of illustration, $1,000,000,000.

Since it does not have the money, and Congress has given away its authority to “create” it, the Government must go to the “creators” for the $1 billion. But, the Federal Reserve, a private corporation, doesn’t just give its money away!

The Bankers are willing to deliver $1,000,000,000 in money or credit to the Federal Government in exchange for the Government’s agreement to pay it back — with interest!

So Congress authorizes the Treasury Department to print $1,000,000,000 in U.S. Bonds, which are then delivered to the Federal Reserve Bankers.

The Federal Reserve then pays the cost of printing the $1,000,000,000 (about $1,000) and makes the exchange. The Government then uses the money to pay its obligations.

What are the results of this fantastic transaction?

Well, $1 billion in Government bills are paid all right, but the Government has now indebted the people to the Bankers for $1 billion on which the people must pay interest!

Tens of thousands of such transactions have taken place since 1913 so that by the 1980's, the U.S. Government is indebted to the Bankers for over $1,000,000,000,000 (trillion) on which the people pay over $100 billion a year in interest alone with no hope of ever paying off the principal.

[In 1995, the total Federal Debt has grown to over $5 trillion, with an annual interest payment of $203 billion, 14% of the federal budget. -Ed] Supposedly our children and following generations will pay forever and forever!

And There's More

You say, "This is terrible!" Yes, it is, but we have shown only part of the sordid story. Under this unholy system, those United States Bonds have now become "assets" of the Banks in the Reserve System which they then use as "reserves" to "create" more "credit" to lend.

Current "reserve" requirements allow them to use that $1 billion in bonds to "create" as much as $15 billion in new "credit" to lend to States, Municipalities, to individuals and businesses.

Added to the original $1 billion, they could have $16 billion of "created credit" out in loans paying them interest with their only cost being $1,000 for printing the original $1 billion!

Since the U.S. Congress has not issued Constitutional money since 1863 (over 100 years), in order for the people to have money to carry on trade and commerce they are forced to borrow the "created credit" of the Monopoly Bankers and pay them usury-interest!

And There's Still More

In addition to the vast wealth drawn to them through this almost unlimited usury, the Bankers who control the money at the top are able to approve or disapprove large loans to large and successful corporations to the extent that refusal of a loan will bring about a reduction in the price that Corporation's stock sells for on the market.

After depressing the price, the Bankers' agents buy large blocks of the stock, after which the sometimes multi-million dollar loan is approved, the stock rises, and is then sold for a profit.

In this manner billions of dollars are made with which to buy more stock. This practice is so refined today that the Federal Reserve Board need only announce to the newspapers an increase or decrease in their "rediscount rate" to send stocks up and down as they wish.

Using this method since 1913, the Bankers and their agents have purchased secret or open control of almost every large corporation in America. Using that control, they then force the corporations to borrow huge sums from their banks so that corporation earnings are siphoned off in the form of interest to the banks.

This leaves little as actual "profits" which can be paid as dividends and explains why stock prices are so depressed, while the banks reap billions in interest from corporate loans.

In effect, the bankers get almost all of the profits, while individual stock holders are left holding the bag.

The millions of working families of America are now indebted to the few thousand Banking Families for twice the assessed value of the entire United States. And these Banking Families obtained that debt against us for the cost of paper, ink, and bookkeeping!

and the Pentagon paid their fair share? Haven't the men and women that lost sons and daughters, husbands and wives in Viet Nam, Korea and the other battles paid their fair share? So you see, this tactic to pit those that are uninformed of the income tax fraud against those who have seen the light is baseless and must be eliminated!

The opposition also uses our religious faith to twist the meaning of authority and to create unjust statutes. People, I know godly authority and our current system does not reflect godly authority. Many of our past and present religious leaders have been jailed for questioning authority. They have been beaten, starved and even killed for their faith and their defiance of injustice.

People of America - is what you're living for worth dying for? Are you willing to take a stand? It's your choice. The creators of this Creature called the income tax, engineered their system to manipulate you into staying in your comfort zones. With a little bit of patriotism and a little bit of fear tactic mixed into a pot of inflation and deflation, they have been able to keep the people confused, intimidated and obedient for over 88 years.

But now the truth about the fraudulent origin and operations of the Federal Reserve System and the Internal Revenue Service have been revealed to the American people. You can no longer claim ignorance of the truth. You must acknowledge it or reject it. The choice is yours. And the consequences of your decision will rest on the shoulders of your children and future generations of Americans.

You can remain an informed slave or you can get off of the plantation. You can remain engrossed in fear, or you can take a stand like Patrick Henry who shouted "give me liberty or give me death." You can stay hypnotized by "As the World Turns" and "The Guiding Light", or you can turn off the boob tube and read the Constitution, then go ask your elected representatives why they refuse to follow it. Remember that those elected representatives have sworn to uphold and defend our Constitution.

Remember that each of our elected representatives has pledged to serve our country first - not a particular party, or certain privileged and special interest groups - but you, the American People. They are our public servants. In closing, we have shown you the truth. Now, for the sake of our country and our children, we ask you to choose justice over injustice, unity over division, courage over fear, truth over ignorance, and liberty over economic slavery. We ask you to stand with us and let the voice of freedom be heard from every corner of our great country. It is time to end this long-standing injustice and tyranny over the American People. Thank you.
